

HUNMASTER SPY VISITS EX-KAISER

Former Member of British Parliament Nearly Trapped English Fleet.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Sept. 21.—The Emperor William has just had a mysterious visit from Ignatius Trebitsch Lincoln, the ex-member of the British Parliament and one-time German master spy, who came near sending the British fleet into a gigantic German trap, and who three years ago gave a merry chase to Scotland Yard agents and the entire New York police until he was finally caught and taken to England.

Lincoln arrived here Friday afternoon in an automobile from Amsterdam. He proceeded at once to the Breitenburg castle, where he was met by Frau Linde, one of the Kaiser's principal and most trusted attendants. She conducted him to the rooms of General von Damme, the ex-Kaiser's personal adjutant, with whom Lincoln then talked for more than an hour behind locked doors.

Numerous conferences. Lincoln had another hour's conference with the general yesterday morning and through von Damme's servants it was learned still another interview was scheduled for yesterday afternoon.

The ex-spy refuses to discuss his visit. Lincoln was deported from England a month ago. He went straight to Berlin, where he remained until a few days ago, when he proceeded to Rotterdam. Twice he visited The Hague, accompanied by some distinguished Germans.

Of the many spy stories of the great war, that of Ignatius Trebitsch Lincoln is one of the most picturesque, mainly because of the extraordinary career of the man. Colossal nerve, fiery ambition, and a keen sense of humor, are his chief characteristics and helped him to climb within a short span of years from a penniless young Hungarian Jew to a member of the British Parliament.

Had Varied Activities. When still a boy he became a convert of the Christian religion and studied theology in Germany and Canada. Two years after arriving in the latter country he received a Presbyterian ministry at Montreal. The following year he became a deacon of the Anglican church there. In 1904 he went to England, took a pastorate at Appledore, in Kent, but soon got the "wanderlust" again and became secretary to a British millionaire with whom he traveled all over the European continent. Returning to England he entered politics. His gift of speech, flamboyant eloquence combined with keen wit helped him beat his rival for the Parliamentary seat from Darlington. Later he traveled extensively in the east, especially Hungary and Galicia. At the outbreak of the war, the English put him in charge of the censorship of Hungarian mail. He tried, but failed, to enter the British secret service, and then "took a number" from Wilhelmstrasse.

French efforts to "land" as British secret agent were almost successful, but Scotland Yard discovered in the nick of time his affiliations with the Kaiser's spy service. A trap was laid for him, but he discovered it in time to escape to America, where he was arrested in Brooklyn on a charge of forgery preferred by the British consul in New York. He escaped and was at large a whole month, writing daily humorous articles for a New York newspaper in which he boasted how he was following his pursuers. Rearrested, he was finally deported and sentenced in England to three years' imprisonment on the forgery charge. His certificate of British naturalization was revoked.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—Profligate landlords who raise rents and refuse repairs may profit by the example of F. T. Fuller, of Wakefield, who has made a present of the house to Victor Cote, who has lived in it for the past twenty-six years.

Recently Cote received from his landlord a cordial letter and a free and clear deed to the house. Fuller wrote that he gave Cote the house because of the long time Cote has been a tenant and because of the pleasant relations that always have existed between them.

"SISSY" TURKEY GOBBLER HATCHING OUT HEN EGGS

"SISSY" Incubations of big turkey gobblers on the farm of Mrs. John Bell are exciting the interest of the entire neighborhood. A month ago he showed all the inclinations to "set," and repeated attempts to "break" him failed. Finally, Mrs. Bell placed seventeen hen eggs under him and for nearly two weeks he stuck faithfully at the job of keeping them warm and turning them over at regular intervals. Mrs. Bell is confident he will bring off nearly a full hatch, but what he will do with the brood remains to be seen. She believes the heat and long dry spell have made the gobbler a trifle daffy.

Editorial

Park Mathewson writes in the Magazine of Wall Street that profit-sharing in its various forms has been in existence since 1839.

Yes, and then some.

If Mr. Mathewson had searched a bit more carefully he would have found that it was advocated by Target as early as 1775.

Perhaps the earliest successful operation of profit-sharing was that of Leclaire, a prosperous painter and decorator of Paris in 1842.

Monsieur Leclaire brought his profit-sharing plan to America about 1829, for which a town—Leclaire, Ill.—was named for him.

We are approaching a period when profit-sharing will be the rule rather than the exception in modern industries.
